Editor's note: Over the past year, in response to suggestions from readers, some new features have been introduced into The Edge of Hawley. These include two occasional series, "My Favorite Place in Hawley" and "How We Came to Hawley." We have also started to publish photographs that celebrate the beauty of our town. The Winter, 2019 issue featured a selection of photographs by Rich Cook; this issue has several by Hussain Hamdan. In future issues, we hope to include not only photographs, but also reproductions of drawings and paintings by Hawley residents. Readers are warmly encouraged to contribute to The Edge of Hawley with art work, photographs, a description of a favorite spot in the town, or the story of how and when they came to live here (which for many, of course, is the very important story of their growing up here).

Events of the Past Season

The Annual Mud Party

This year, as we do every spring when the ice and snow begin to recede and the mud takes over, Hawleyites gathered at Craig and Pamela Shrimpton's home on Forge Hill Road, to eat, drink, talk, and laugh together, to celebrate the end of winter, and anticipate the coming pleasures of spring and summer. This year, the event was held on March 17th, which probably explains why Merle Shrimpton was decked out in a leprechaun costume.

More than 30 members of the Hawley community were present to enjoy the Shrimptons' hospitality and the delicious array of starters (chips, almonds, stuffed grape leaves, Thai rolls, devilled eggs, pancini, cocktail shrimp and artichoke, avocado, and crab dips); entrées (sliced ham, butternut squash, lasagna, mac'n'cheese, quinoa, green and 3-bean salads, Irish stew with potatoes; a variety of breads (soda, corn, white, and rolls), and quiche; and desserts (apricot pudding, fruit salad, cookies and squares, an almond tart, and a green pistachio cake in recognition of St. Patrick's Day).

The animated conversations covered a broad range of topics, including expressions of relief that we were finally seeing the retreat of winter, reports on the state of the DCR's East Hawley-West Hawley connection project, progress on the 4-town broadband internet enterprise, travel, health, music, art, building plans, and how and when to plant what will be growing in the gardens of Hawley this summer.

Upcoming Events

Come and Sing with Alice Parker: Alice Parker has graciously offered to lead us in singing a collection of familiar (and possibly some not so familiar) American folk songs. This wonderful event will take place at the Meetinghouse on Sunday, June 9th from 3:00 P.M. - 5:00 P.M.

The Giant Tag Sale: Back by popular demand! Beth Thwing is mounting another grand tag sale at the Grove on Father's Day Weekend, June 15th and 16th.

Got stuff? Here's a way to discard items you've replaced, don't want, or no longer need. The organizing process started on May 1st and continues through June 8th. Call Beth to arrange a drop-off or for help moving big things (413-339-0124).

Things to keep in mind: What will sell? Almost anything: "One person's trash is another person's treasure." But ... it must work! "Gently used" is the by-word. And reasonably clean helps, too!

What won't sell? Encyclopedias or other large book sets, old computer parts and accessories, clothing, large appliances, items that will be difficult or hazardous to recycle. What benefits from this tag sale? All of our purchases become donations to the fund for the restoration of the interior of the Sons and Daughters of Hawley's Meetinghouse (re-plastering and painting of ceiling and walls, replacing the huge, tattered window shades, and lots of other much needed work).

Here's hoping that you can help with this Sons and Daughters effort. We thank you so much!

QUESTIONS? Please call Beth at 413-339-0124.

Hawley Day: The annual meeting of the Sons and Daughters of Hawley brings people who have connections to the town – present and past – together to socialize and conduct the official business of the society. As always, on the second Sunday of August (August 11th) the event will start at 10:00 A.M. with coffee, pastries, and conversation outside the Meetinghouse; we will move inside at 11:00 for the formal meeting of the society, and conclude with lunch out on the lawn in front of the Hawley Grove (in case of rain, we will move lunch into the Grove). The Board of Trustees of the Sons and Daughters of Hawley provides the morning coffee and pastries, lunch salads, assorted side dishes, drinks, and desserts, and suggests that you bring anything else you'd like to eat or drink. We hope to see you all there for what is always an occasion for great happiness, when people from near and far get together with friends, family, and neighbors, enjoy live musical entertainment, catch up, and share food, memories, and laughs.

No-Bake Bake Sale: Throughout the month of September, members of the Sons and Daughters of Hawley will be encouraged to make donations to support the activities of the society.

There is a long-standing tradition for members to use this event as a chance to share old family recipes or poems (or, if possible, both) in conjunction with their donations. In keeping with this tradition, we publish here a bit of "haiku-like poetry" that was enclosed with a No-Bake Bake Sale check.

Mother used to bake
Lots of pies and lots of cakes
Good old days! Long gone!
(But ...) we do love Hawley
Reminds us where we come from
How blessed we have been.

Bill and Joy Thwing

In our last issue, we published a recipe for pimento cheese, contributed by Jody Stewart, of Tregellys Fiber Farm. After it came out, we received a very nice note from Jody, pointing out an error we'd made in our printing of the recipe, and so, with a heartfelt apology, we offer it again, this time -- we hope -- without any errors ...

Pimento Cheese (1/2 recipe)

4 oz. each of sharp yellow and white cheddar, grated
½ of a 2-oz. jar of pimentos, chopped
1 Tbsp of the pimento juice
2 dashes of Lea & Perrins Worcestershire Sauce
3 Tbsps of Duke's mayonnaise
Salt and pepper to taste

Harvest Dinner: This year's Harvest Dinner will be on Sunday, September 15th, at Stump Sprouts on West Hill Road, at 5:00 P.M. In addition to the remarkable meal, composed of locally grown food and prepared expertly by Suzanne and Lloyd Crawford, there will be an after-dinner presentation about New England birds of prey by Tom Ricardi of the Massachusetts Bird of Prey Rehabilitation Society and New Hampshire Audubon (and his extraordinary birds!).

AND, here is the event that only happens once every five years ... YES, IT'S THE ... PUDDING CONTEST!

2019 is the year when the much-heralded, quinquennial contest returns. On Sunday, October 6th, the Pudding Hollow Pudding Festival will take place at the Sons and Daughters Meetinghouse and the Grove. The central event of the day is the contest itself, but there will also be a fantastic lunch, and homespun Hawley entertainment. Puddings being submitted for judging will arrive at 11:00 A.M., and the festivities will continue from then until about 2 P.M.

Attendance is free, but there is a $20 entry fee for the contest, and everyone is asked to make a donation to cover lunch. The funds raised will be used for the restoration of the interior of the Meetinghouse.

Fun, food, and a worthy cause: who could ask for anything more? Additional details will be published in the Summer, 2019 Edge and posted on the Sons and Daughters of Hawley's website (<http://sites.google.com/site/sonsanddaughtersofhawley/Home>), as they become available. For the moment, please go ahead and test pudding recipes.

Community and Town Business

Town Election

On May 6th, Hawley held its annual municipal election, with the following results.

Hussain Hamdan was re-elected to a three-year term on the Select Board, to the Hawlemont School Committee, and to the Mohawk Trail Regional School District School Committee.

Ed Brady was returned to the Board of Assessors for another three-year term.

Carla Clark was elected with write-in votes for a one-year term as Town Auditor.

Suzanne Crawford was elected to a three-year seat as a non-parent member of the Hawlemont Regional School District Committee.

Lark Thwing won another one-year term as Town Moderator.

Annual Town Meeting

On May 13th, Hawley residents voted on 12 of the 15 articles in the Annual Town Meeting Warrant, approving all proposed expenditures, appropriations, and contributions in a budget of $1,036,878.54.

One item had to be passed over temporarily, because the specific amount of the contribution was not available, and one article -- a proposal to allow the Town to deny, revoke, or suspend any local permit or license for an individual who has failed to pay his or her taxes -- was tabled so that it could be studied further and possibly reworked.

The Middle Road - Hunt Road Connection

In the Autumn, 2018 issue of The Edge of Hawley we reported on the progress of the DCR-funded project to repair Middle Road in the State Forest and reestablish a direct link between East and West Hawley. That work is now almost completed.

All of the major washouts have been repaired and Middle Road is drivable, though not comfortably, according to those who have done test drives. Several areas are covered with rough, sharp gravel, which still remains to be covered with dirt fill.

Eventually, the Hawley road crew will have responsibility for maintaining the road, which will be open seasonally: it will not be plowed in the winter months (during which time it may be used by snowmobiles), and will also be closed during mud season.

When the project is totally finished, there will be a ceremony to commemorate the reconnecting of East and West Hawley and to thank Representative Paul Mark and Senator Adam Hinds for having secured the necessary funding, and DCR Commissioner Leo Roy, for making this a priority.

Bygone Years of Hawley

Driving through Hawley today, where the observable businesses are primarily land-based (e.g., White Farm, Singing Brook Farm, Forge Hill Logging, Stump Sprouts, Sidehill Farm, Headwater Cider Orchards), it's difficult to imagine that 200 years ago the town was abuzz with shops and industries: grist- and sawmills; manufacturers of broom handles, butter boxes, whip butts, rakes, valve handles and wheels, bit brace heads and handles, stone-boat planks, chairs; an iron ore mine; forges; clothing works; kilns for baking bricks and burning charcoal; shoemakers and blacksmiths; and tanneries.

In her History of the Town of Hawley, Franklin County, Massachusetts 1771 - 1951, with Genealogies (1953), Louise Hale Johnson gives an account of some of those tanneries. She tells us that Leavitt Hallock built a large tannery on property "in the extreme south part of the present limits of the town," purchased from the Rice family (who had bought it earlier from Capt. Simeon Crittenden). Hallock had a flourishing business there with this tannery and a number of grist- and sawmills, until the tannery burned in 1846. The stonework "remnants" in Hussain Hamden's haunting photograph is most likely what is left today of that building.

There were, of course, other tanneries in Hawley. In 1835, Austin Pease built a tannery in Forge Hollow. It was sold to Howes and Sears, who operated it until 1855. And, there was at least one more.

In his History of the town of Hawley (1887), William Giles Atkins says,

"Many years ago a small tannery was built where Atherton Hunt lives, which was operated by horse power and hand power." (p. 35)

From Harrison Parker's Hawley Massachusetts, the First Fifty Years: 1770 - 1820 (1992) we know that the homestead of Elisha Hunt and his son, Atherton, was on Hunt Road in South Hawley (p. 154), but Atkins says no more about the small tannery, so we don't know exactly where it stood, when it was built, by whom, or how long it was in operation.

My Favorite Place in Hawley

By Trina Sears Sternstein

When I was a child, I divided the year into two parts: the time my family lived in West Newton and the summers, which we spent in Hawley. Suburban West Newton did not hold much interest for me. I wanted to be in Hawley, where I could be in the woods, play in the brook, climb those very old trees (spared by the first settlers from clearing), and watch the shadows of the clouds move across the hills.

My immediate family, Fred and Kitty Sears, my two brothers, Sandy and Paul, and I stayed with my grandfather Frederick Sears in an earlier version of the house where Jerry and I now live, at 73 Pudding Hollow Road. My other grandparents, Harry and Winifred Sears, my aunt and uncle Henry and Marion Sears, and my cousins Richard, David, and John, spent their summers in the house around the corner, at 87 Pudding Hollow Road.

This old house (built in the early 19th century), which is still in our family, has been one of my favorite places in Hawley all of my life. It was purchased in 1904 by my grandparents Harry and Winifred. The original Sears homestead, on Middle Road, was sold to Gordon and Mary Parker in 1920 by my great-great aunt, Amelia Sears.

My grandparents' house was not in good condition when they bought it. It consisted of a Cape which was attached to a carriage shed, followed by a cobbler's shop, followed by a large woodshed with a three-seat privy, followed by a barn. In typical fashion, these were all connected. There was also another barn, perpendicular to the one attached to the house. By the time I knew it, the carriage shed and cobbler's shop had been converted into a kitchen, dining room, and storage room. Above these was a loft space, partitioned into one large and one smaller room, which were used as sleeping quarters for family members and the occasional bat.

The smaller of those rooms provided me with one of the scarier moments of my childhood. I had been left with my aunt and uncle for a few days and was put to bed in that room. I woke up just before dawn to find that along one wall there was a group of sinister figures who were staring at me. I stayed totally still until the morning light turned the figures into a row of clothes, hung on a long pole, with hats above them.

I remember the kitchen, which was called the "summer kitchen." This suggests that there was another older kitchen in the original Cape, but I don't remember it. The summer kitchen had a pump with water almost as cold as the chunk of ice in the genuine icebox near the door.

For many years my uncle Henry taught in a school in New Orleans and when the family came north for the summer they brought fireworks with them for the 4th of July. They were set off in the big front yard of the house and there were sparklers, as well, which we could hold in our hands while they were lit.

Across the road from the driveway to the house is a steep hill with the remnants of a wall. If you climb up the hill for a while along that wall the area flattens out. I still think of this place as the pasture. There used to be two old maple trees there, left standing by the early inhabitants of Hawley for syrup and shade, and we often had family picnics under those trees. Most of the land had been cleared by the first settlers: old pictures of our town reveal how much. And even when I was young, enough of the land was still open meadow to allow our neighbors' cows to be pastured there. Occasionally they showed up at our picnics. Only one of those old maples is left now, and each spring I wait, with care and anticipation, to see signs that it is still alive.

My mother, who also spent her summers in the old house, remembered the chickens which my grandfather Harry liked to keep, and the story about the horse who became accustomed to being given a doughnut through the window when they were being made. One day, he got loose and, smelling doughnuts cooking, found the door open and came right into the hall leading to the kitchen. Whenever I walk through that narrow hallway I think about the struggle it must have been getting that animal out!

When I walk into this house now, I see in my mind's eye a series of pictures like snapshots of the people who lived in or visited this place. They go back three generations and forward to my children, my grandchildren, my cousins and our spouses, for whom, I believe, this place remains very important.

Births

Jackson Hayes Neipp was born at 12:13 P.M. on January 4th, 2019 at Cooley Dickinson Hospital, Northampton, Massachusetts to Holly Beatrice Niepp and Christopher Brendan Goodhind of Forget Road.

Marriages

Ryan Michael Crochetiere and Karen Lynn Hoffman of Grout Road were married in Greenfield, Massachusetts on February 16th, 2019.

Peter Cole Niers Mitchell of Forget Road, Hawley and Gerda Swedowsky of Bullard Road, Wendell, Massachusetts were married at 112 Forget Road on May 11th, 2019.

Obituaries

It is with sadness that we mark the passing of Sally Rich. Sally asked that no formal obituary be published in the newspapers, but her grandson, Hussain Hamdan, sent this very moving tribute to all Hawley residents. We are reprinting his words here in The Edge of Hawley with his permission and in the belief that Sally would not have minded.

It is with great regret that I inform you that Hawley Selectman Sarah J. "Sally" Rich (formerly Sarah Jones), passed away surrounded by her family a little after eight o'clock in the evening on Tuesday, March the 26th, 2019 at Baystate Medical Center in Springfield. She was 77 years old. She was presently also serving on the Hawlemont Regional School Committee and the Hawley Conservation Commission. As many people in Hawley know, she was also my grandmother and one of my best friends.

Sally was Hawley's first and, thus far, only woman to sit on the Select Board, serving on and off from the 1980s and being elected to her current term in May of 2018. She left the Board in the '90s for health reasons but, when her health improved and the Town needed her, she answered the call and came back. She liked to be called by the traditional title "Selectman," not "Select-woman," "Select-person," or "Select Board Member."

Over the course of her service to Hawley, she filled a number of local and regional roles, including Polls Constable, Town Clerk (briefly, having been written in without her knowledge), representative to the Franklin Regional Council of Governments, and the Mohawk Municipal Advisory Committee. She also played a role coordinating the response in West Hawley to Tropical Storm Irene in 2011.

Beyond her public service and political activism, Sally was also a loving mother, grandmother, wife, and friend. She was loved by many and respected by all, even those with whom she had disagreements from time to time. Sally exemplified selfless service. She also exemplified the virtues of decency, sincerity, integrity, kindness, civility, moderation, and honor. Not many people could set an example more deserving to be followed.

Sally will be sorely missed by all of us. She cannot be replaced, but what we can do is to continue moving forward and pick up where she left off. Having known her for 27 of those 77 great years, I know without a doubt that is what she would have wanted.

As a side note, Sally was fully aware and mentally competent while at the hospital before she passed away. As a result of this, I had the opportunity to communicate many messages of love, prayers, and support from her friends and members of this community. She really appreciated it. To those of you who reached out and asked me to convey your thoughts and prayers to her, THANK YOU!!! Your messages got through and were heard loud and clear.

Sally did not want an elaborate funeral or fanfare. She told me so many times. What we are going to do is to have a celebration of her life. The celebration will occur at the Hawley Town Office on Friday, June 14th, 2019 from 1:00 to 4:30 PM. It will be an outdoor event, weather permitting.

In lieu of flowers, our family would recommend that you donate to the Hawley Volunteer Fire Department or the Charlemont Ambulance Association. Sally always had great respect for the emergency services, supported them however she could, and was grateful to have been assisted by them more than once in her own times of need.

God bless Sally Rich. She is with us and we are with her.

With respect, Hussain A. Hamdan

Jean Holden

Jean Shumway Holden, 91, of Amherst, Massachusetts passed away peacefully on Thursday, April 18th, 2019, at Coleman House in Northborough, MA. Jean was born in 1927 in Northampton, MA. to Frank "Hal" Holden, formerly of Hawley, MA. and Mary Reed Pettingell Holden, formerly of Newbury, MA.

Jean grew up in Northampton and enjoyed working in the family grocery store and hunting woodchucks with her father. She was a graduate of Northampton High '44 and Bates College '48. Jean spent her career as a purchasing manager at MIT Lincoln Laboratory.

Jean and her sister Marcia (1921-2015) retired to Amherst in the 1980s and continued to enjoy travelling. They went to all 50 states, Europe, and Australia and New Zealand. They frequently travelled with the Learning in Retirement program.

Jean enjoyed helping out at the Munson Memorial Library in Amherst and volunteered with several community organizations. Memorably, Jean and her sister were able to use their local expertise in the Information Booth in Amherst to assist travelers, and in the past year, Jean continued to volunteer with the Amherst Survival Center.

Jean was the last of the Holden family line and she will be remembered fondly by her many friends, cousins, and neighbors, including the Gudell family of Sunderland, the Cadman/Miller family of Northborough, and her oldest friend, Betty McKown of Northampton.
